City Gears Up For Action On Elderly Housing Facility

by Mary Lou Williamson

A number of items concerning the elderly housing facility will appear on the agenda of the next council meeting, December 12, as the city gears up for action. Final loan closing, contract signing and ground-breaking ceremonies all should take place within the next ten days.

The council and city staff, for the present time, will be taking the actions and signing the papers rather than the Board of Directors of the Housing for the Elderly, Inc. The Board, apparently, will do little or nothing until the many legal intricacies have been sorted out. The city may then turn over the operation of the facility to the non-profit corporation it has been busily setting up during the past month.

Contracts

At its next meeting council is expected to authorize the city manager to sign a contract for construction of the facility with Thomas P. Harkins. Harkins had offered the low bid two months ago on September 27. Also, three ordinances will come up, for second reading and final passage: (1) a mortgage-loan agreement with the Community Development Administration (CDA) for a total of $3,343,000; (2) adoption of an elderly housing fund budget as approved by the State and appropriation of funds for construction; and (3) creation of a special fund of $35,000, or one percent of the total development costs, as earnest money. The city will use funds from the unappropriated surplus of its Capital Improvement Fund, placing the funds in an interest bearing account with the interest to be returned to the city's Capital Improvement Fund. The money will be returned to the city over the next four years as certain stages in development of the facility are completed.

Work Session

Council held a work session November 29. Assistant City Manager Dennis Piendak told the News Review that council reviewed the list of proposed changes or deletions in the materials called for in the original construction contract. The architect, Steve Parker and Dick Lombardi, representative of Harkins construction company, were present to answer questions. Items to be changed include such items as less expensive windows, interior doors, hardware, bathroom and lobby floor tiles, swinging instead of sliding doors; uniform color wall paint with two coats instead of three, and much more.

Council questioned the merit of some changes which appeared to call for reduction in quality or aesthetics. Further investigation was requested, Piendak said, as to (1) will the State allow an increase in construction budget or (2) could the city initially fund certain items and be reimbursed from the project when operating?

Parker reported on a problem with Pepco. There could be an additional cost of $10,000 to locate the transformer for the facility other than where Pepco wants it. Council, according to Piendak, requested that a letter be sent to the Maryland Public Service Commission questioning this requirement of Pepco.

WSSC

In another last minute problem, WSSC claimed the city had no sewer authorization. City officials quickly hand-carried copies of the letter from county council which had approved the authorization last May. The city's permits needed for construction are going through the mill and should be ready in time.

Ground-breaking Planned

Planning is underway for ground-breaking for the 100-unit Greenbelt Senior Citizens Housing development on Sunday, December 18 at 3 p.m. Ceremonies will be held at the Ridge Road Center.

with CDA should occur December 13 with construction to begin shortly thereafter.

The final deadline, now December 19 has been moved up from December 31. Written into the contract to conform to federal requirements, December 19 is the cut-off date for determining wage rates to be paid to the construction workers.

Kreimer to Discuss Demographic Study

On Thursday, December 15 the Prince Georges County Board of Education will release the results of a demographic study dealing with student populations and school boundaries. It is anticipated that this study will have a far-reaching impact upon the assignment of children to particular schools in the county.

Lesley Kreimer, Board Member representing District 2, which includes Greenbelt, will hold two open meetings to discuss the report and answer questions. The first meeting will be held Friday, December 16, at 10 a.m., in the Multi-Purpose Room of the Greenbelt Recreation Center. The second, Saturday, December 10, at 10 a.m. in the Meeting Room of the Greenbelt Public Library. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Long Agenda Forces Council To Meet Twice in One Week

by Elaine Skolnik

A lengthy agenda forced the Greenbelt Council to handle the city's business at two meetings - Part 1 on November 28 and Part II on November 30. The double feature cast the spotlight on over 40 items giving News Review reporters enough copy for the remaining issues of 1977.

Triangle

City Manager James K. Giese was troubled by two matters relating to the Greenbelt Triangle - (1) possible drainage damage to city property (Indian Springs) located to the north of the Triangle and (2) the use of the display circle on the Capitol Cadillac tract.

Recently the city received a grading plan from the developer indicating how the entire Triangle property would be graded in accordance with the overall concept plan previously submitted by the developer. The latter plan received a favorable reception from the county and showed the proposed location of buildings and the kinds of business organizations that the developer hoped to attract.

Giese pointed out that (1) presently the northern portion of the Triangle property drains through the city land to a culvert under the Beltway, (2) in the regrading process the drainage would still flow toward city property, and (3) the water detention basin located west of the city property, in order to function, must be served by a storm sewer system to carry the water flowing toward the city tract around the property to the basin. Giese's concern was that the grading concept plan does not detail how the storm drainage system would work, and that the system would not be implemented until construction takes place. Therefore, city land could be adversely impacted.

Councilman Charles Schwan thought the city should express these fears to the appropriate parties. "We don't want the city property to be washed away willy nilly because it is located outside the developer's land," he said.

Council directed Giese to write to the developer and county officials to put them on notice of the city's concern about drainage plans for the Triangle and the possible destruction of city land.

Councilman Richard Castaldi said the city must also be watchful of the sedimentation ponds and stressed the need for the ponds to be maintained properly.

Capitol Cadillac

Since proposed tree plantings will partially screen Cadillac's display area from view from the Beltway, Giese questioned the display area serving any useful purpose as designed. He was worried about the applicant coming back at some future date to request another use for the area. Councilman Thomas White felt, and council agreed, that this concern should be conveyed to Capitol Cadillac.

Council looked over the revised landscape plan for Cadillac which provides for the replacement of trees that had been cut down in violation of the original site plan. There will be additional planting of eight Northern red oaks, five red maples and four white pines.

Permits

In response to the city's request that it receive timely notice of permit applications and issuances, County Executive Winfield Kelly, Jr. explained that monthly reports from the Department of Licenses and Permits indicating all permit applications received and permits issued for the previous 30 days will be sent to the city. This reporting system will begin within 90 days.

Council did not feel that this procedure was adequate. "A great deal can happen within 30 days," Schwan said. Council directed Giese to convey their position to Kelly.

Reports

The Election Board, after considering proposals for a change in the method of selecting the mayor and the city council, recommended that the present system, as defined in the City Charter be continued. The charter is silent on the selection of mayor, but traditionally, the top vote getter receives the post.

Other proposals studied by the board were (1) council election as presently run with the addition of an advisory vote on mayor that would not be binding, (2) council election as presently run with the addition of an advisory vote on Mayor that would be mandatory and (3) direct election for mayor with the council and mayor elected separately (the defeated candidate(s) for mayor would not get a slot on council).

In response to a city council request to consider the utilization of University of Maryland landscape architect students for preparing landscape plans for Parcel 7 and related projects, the Park and Recreation Advisory Board recommended that (1) Parcel 7 be left in its present natural state except for the incline slope adjacent to Crescent Road which is in need of erosion control.

Come Out and Vote To the Editor:

A sampling of Letters-to-the Editor in the recent fortieth anniversary supplement brought back memories of the Twin Pines meeting of 1974. In spite of the fact that there was much dissension, there was much healthy debate among the members of Twin Pines, including people on the Board of Directors and the various elected committees. The meeting room was almost packed, and the meeting was extremely lively. In short, the membership was exercising its control over the Association, which, for the cooperative-minded population of Greenbelt, was a healthy sign.

Since then, debate has slackened off a bit, and the meetings are nowhere near as lively or populated. While this can largely be attributed to the fact that there is little controversy, it also hints toward an increased apathy in the Twin Pines membership.

On Wednesday, December 14, at 8 p.m. Twin Pines will hold a membership meeting which will consider amending the bylaws so that Twin Pines can return to the principle of one-member, one vote. While other concepts are initiated in these bylaw changes, the one-member, one vote concept is perhaps the most important because it is a cornerstone of cooperatives, for which Twin Pines was founded.

I find it rather appalling that I have heard absolutely no discussion or debate about these proposals beyond the "in-group" discussion of the Board of Directors and the committee that proposed them. Although I consider the proposals to be non-controversial, I find it hard to believe that much of the membership waded through the meeting notice, which took more than a full page in the News Review, and had absolutely no questions about it, or disagreements with it. I am also concerned with the possibility that there may not even be enough people at the meeting to constitute a quorum.

Copies of the meeting notice, and the current bylaws are available at the Twin Pines office. I urge all members of Twin Pines to attend the meeting and to vote the passage of the bylaws amendments. I would also more than welcome seeing an informed "No" vote, which would at least be indicative of interest in Twin Pines. For those who are unable to attend the meeting, proxy forms are available at the Twin Pines office.

At the 1974 annual meeting, much of the membership of Twin Pines was fighting hard to maintain whatever could be salvaged of the cooperative nature of the institution. Now that a giant step can be taken toward that cooperative direction, there seems to be minimal interest.

How soon we forget.

Michael T. Jones

Family Relationships Study

Family interaction and family processes have long been an interest of Janet Kuhn, resident of Greenbelt. As a marriage and family counselor she has been teaching people basic principles about the way families function. Kuhn does this in lectures to community groups, in workshops, in counseling sessions, and in university courses.

Triangular relationships are the subject of an upcoming workshop she will be conducting on Thursday evening, December 15 at the Springhill Lake Community House. Triangles are the basic building blocks in a family system according to Kuhn. A two-person system is not stable because when tension develops one person triangles in a third. In time set patterns develop in these triangles. Understanding triangles facilitates the understanding of family patterns. Details regarding the workshop may be found elsewhere in today's issue of the News Review.

Greenbelt Soccer

There will be an organizational meeting of the Greenbelt Soccer Association Wed., Dec. 14, 7:30 p.m., in the conference room of the Greenbelt Youth Center. All persons interested in the advancement of soccer in this area are invited. Help and support are needed.

Family Christmas Concert

by Judith Van Deusen

If you have children, bring them to the Greenbelt Choral Arts Society Family Christmas Concert this Sunday, December 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Holy Cross Lutheran Church. If you don't have children, come anyway; you will still enjoy yourself.

Geared especially to the youngsters are "Carol of the Bells" (Ukrainian Christmas carol), "Let Carols Ring" (Swedish Christmas carol), "Masters in This Hall" (French traditional carol), "Midnight Sleigh Bells" (based on a Prokofiev theme), "A Christmas Lullaby" (Brahms), "Carol of the Drum" (the "Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum" song), and lastly, "Angels We Have Heard on High" (a Robert Shaw arrangement).

Supposing you have come over to the Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Greenbelt (6905 Greenbelt Road), and you are enjoying the experience of family togetherness as well as the lively music. Now that you have the little ones there, how about exposing them to a sample of real "culture"? Also on the program are four motets by Francis Poulenc. These are short pieces—each very different from the other—describing in Latin the events of the Christmas story. Even your young ones will appreciate the pace and color of these motets.

Admission is free; donations to help meet expenses are welcome. The program will be conducted by Douglas Freeman.

Public Hearing December 15 On Long-Range Plan for PG

by Robin Matanin

A major proposal to amend the Prince Georges County General Plan will go to public hearing on Thursday, December 15 at 7:30 p.m. at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. If adopted, the new plan will serve as a guide for long-range policy and growth in the county for the next 20 to 30 years. The recommendations were prepared by the staff of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (MNCPPC) with the help of a county-wide citizens advisory group.

Greenbelt is included under the umbrella plan for the county. Since the plan is designed to affect the whole county, it is difficult to pinpoint its effect on Greenbelt alone, says James W. Collins, Chief of General Planning Division of MNCPPC.

The plan will deal with such issues as transportation, housing, environment, land use, and public facilities. According to the proposal the plan will proceed in three stages, with "each level requiring the solution to certain environmental, transportation, or public service needs in order to proceed to the next level of growth."

Greenbelt is classified as an "emerging community" under the new plan. Policies applying to this category focus on the expansion of both employment and residential opportunities while preserving the community's desirable characteristics. The use of mass transit will be emphasized. While expansion is encouraged, it will be limited by the community's designated boundaries.

Collins said that the plan does a lot to build a tax base by creating better job opportunities.

Greenbelt a Model

There is also considerable emphasis on environment in the proposed amendment. Collins said that Greenbelt would not be affected as much as other areas because of its natural surroundings. In fact, Greenbelt may serve as a model to other communities, according to Collins.

Single-family dwellings instead of multi-family units are emphasized in the plan, which forecasts a reduction in population and in the number of dwellings in the Greenbelt-College Park area from those predicted in the present area plan. Population will hold at 35,000, as compared to 51,737, and the number of dwellings has been dropped to 12,000 from 17,510.

All the effects of the plan on Greenbelt cannot be seen until it is implemented throughout the county. Greenbelt will not be affected in the same manner as the rest of the county because the plan works from existing resources. Greenbelt is currently ahead in some areas and behind in others.

The proposed Amendment highlights suggests a series of 14 basic County goals and 146 subgoals to guide the physical and socio-economic growth of the County; (2) includes a system of basic community growth units and a sequence for their development compatible with the fiscal capabilities of the County and its abilities to make adequate provisions for needed public services and facilities; (3) proposes to modify the original wedges and corridors concept by making certain practical reductions in the scale and extent of the original corridors, the number of corridor cities proposed, and the degree to which they may be served by mass transit; (4) reduces by nearly 50 percent the proposed new freeways and expressways; and (5) includes specific plan implementation guidelines for environmental, housing, transportation, public facilities, and land utilization.

The Hearing will be held jointly by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Prince Georges County District Council. Interested citizens are encouraged to attend and express their views. Speakers may register in advance by calling 952-3514.

The Greenbelt Concert Band of Prince Georges County, under the direction of Mr. John DelHomme, will play a Christmas Concert on Dec. 11, at 3 p.m. at the Greenbelt Youth Center. Works by J. S. Bach, Leroy Anderson, Victor Herbert and George Frederick Handel will be performed.

sion control and (2) students work on landscape planning for a number of areas in Greenbelt Lake Park, such as the entrance, periphery of parking lot, and crest end of bay. PRAB also thought that the lake shore line should be repaired and maintained to control erosion, as well as the area around the concession stand. These reports will be discussed at the next Council meeting.

Fire Station Addition

Passed for first reading was an ordinance to establish a "Fire Station Addition Fund." A loan of $10,000 would be appropriated to provide for temporary financing for the construction of an addition to the Greenbelt fire station. The addition is to be financed with a bond issue.

While the city under its authority will offer the bonds for sale, the loan, including interest, will be repaid by the fire department.

We have it on high authority that sharing the ride is a very good idea.

It made sense to Noah.
After all, it was a whole lot more economical and efficient to get together and share the ride than it would have been for everybody to go their own way.
And that still holds true today. Sharing the ride with just one other person can cut your commuting costs in half.

Think about it.

Police Blotter

November 18 - December 2

The manager of Emerson's Restaurant reported that he was held up in the early morning hours of Nov. 19 as he was making a deposit of the night's receipts in the bank. Lookouts have been issued for two persons who appeared to be in their late teens. The Maryland Federal Savings and Loan Association was robbed at gunpoint by two suspects at 10:30 a.m. on Nov. 20. Two persons entered the bank and ordered all occupants on the floor. A total of approximately $10,000 was taken in the two incidents.

A Volkswagen was reported stolen from Springhill Lake as was a van from the 16 Court of Ridge Road. Cpl. Miskell, after observing a truck being operated in a reckless manner, gave chase and found it two blocks away unoccupied. It had recently been stolen from the USDA farms in Beltsville and was returned. This incident marks the 100th vehicle recovered by Cpl. Miskell since he joined the Department ten years ago.

Eight breaking and enterings were reported. One apartment in Springhill Lake was entered during the late night hours while the resident was sleeping, and a television set was taken. Two other apartments there were entered during early morning hours while the residents were not at home; television sets were removed in both instances. A residence on Empire Place was forcibly entered during the early evening hours while no one was at home; a camera was taken. A residence on Ridge Road was apparently entered by an unlocked door while the residents were home, and a purse was taken. The first reported entry occurred at Windsor Green during the early evening hours while the residents were away. Two television sets were taken. A construction trailer was entered at Greenbriar, several tools and light fixtures were removed. Investigation is underway in all cases.

Eight vehicles were reported broken into during this period. Batteries and CB radios were taken in most cases. Two occurred at Beltway Plaza, seven at Springhill Lake and one on Ridge Road.

More Stop Signs?

by Elaine Skolnik

At city council's direction, ordinances will be prepared for a four-way stop sign at Northway and Ridge and three-way stop signs at Eastway and Ridge and at Lakeside and Pinecrest. These will be discussed at the Dec. 12 meeting.

Previously the city received two petitions from citizens seeking the erection of stop signs on Ridge Road. Accident records at the Eastway and Northway intersections do not indicate accident problems, but there are vision difficulties . . . A speed check conducted by the police in front of the Methodist Church revealed that a substantial number of vehicles travelling the street exceeded 30 mph.

According to Police Chief Lane, stop signs are justified at intersections having a combination of high speed, restricted view and serious accidents records. Council was informed that stop signs also create safety hazards. At intersections where a heavily travelled street crosses a lightly used street, some drivers might ignore the stop sign or not come to a complete stop and roll through the intersection, resulting in a serious accident.

After studying the pros and cons of stop signs at these points the city staff felt there was no clear cut justification for the installation of stop signs or for leaving the street as it is presently signed. The decision was left up to council.

The city staff recommended against the placement of stop signs at any intersection in the vicinity of Pinecrest and Lakeside Drive. Chief Lane noted that (1) traffic flow is light, (2) a speed survey indicated that most vehicles were operating within the speed limit, and (3) there was no record of accidents in the area caused by poor sight vision. Additionally, it was claimed that drivers would not expect a stop sign at that location. He did recommend that "Slow" signs be installed.

Two residents present at the meeting informed council that there had been accidents in the vicinity of Pinecrest and Lakeside Drive.
